

Prize Fighter: The Life and Times of Bob Fitzsimmons (Mainstream Sport)

This is a true story of a heroic, larger-than-life character, who rose from humble origins in Cornwall, England to become the first Englishman to be crowned world heavyweight boxing champion. On the way, Bob Fitzsimmons attracted a worldwide following, amassed and lost a huge fortune, married four times, and was charged with manslaughter but acquitted after killing two people in the ring. Prize Fighter details the rise and fall of an international hero, from his remarkable feat as three-time world champion at three different weights, to his unceremonious death at age 54 only four years after his last title fight. This is a story about the man who fought his way through the Wild West of the 1880s, and a tale of surviving the world's most savage sport to find international fame, and still die without a penny.
